Parental responsibility - Definition

*The Children's Act 1989 defines Parental responsibility as: 'all the rights, duties, powers, responsibilities and authority by law a parent of a child has in relation to the child and his property' and states it is concerned with bringing the child up, caring for him, but does not affect the relationship of parent and child for other purposes.

The following have parental responsibility under the Children's Act 1989:

- A child's biological mother
- A father who is married to the mother of the child when the child is born or a civil partner who had a civil partnership with the mother at the time of the child's birth.
- Unmarried fathers or civil partners for children born after 01.12.03 (in England) if they are registered on the birth certificate. This cannot be used retrospectively.

There are a number of ways of getting parental responsibility under the act:

- For unmarried fathers by being registered as the child's father on the birth certificate (birth is reregistered)
- Entering into a voluntary parental responsibility agreement with the mother and anyone else with parental responsibility
- Marrying the mother
- Applying to the court to obtain a parental responsibility order
- Obtaining a residence order
- Being appointed as the child's guardian
- Adopting the child

Parents do not lose parental responsibility if they divorce.

Foster parents, step parents or grandparents will not have parental responsibility unless this has been granted by the courts*.
